DISCUSS INDIA'S POSITION — Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (left), U. S. delegate to the United Nations, chats with Indian delegate Krishna Menon at the UN political committee meeting in New York. During the session, Australia appealed to the western powers to settle the question of India's participation in the Far Eastern political conference in private, thus preventing a public western split in a UN floor vote.

NORTH SIDES

Construction of an addition to the Rome cafe — more commonly known as The Rome — at the corner of East Washington and Chestnut sts. now well under way, will provide enlarged dining room facilities and a cocktail lounge and is expected to be completed in November. Plans call for a more varied menu with the accent to be on Italian cuisine. Present facilities are to be renovated and used in conjunction with the restaurant, which is also to be available for Christmas and special parties, banquets, showers, receptions, and other occasions.

It is possible that our Attleboro sportswriter has already forgotten the 12-0 defeat handed to Coach Tozier's boys by North Attleboro's football team last Thanksgiving? In writing about Attleboro's coming practice yesterday, he said that "all" Attleboro opponents have the jump on the city boys because they engage in spring practice. Either the man forgot that North Attleboro is on the schedule or he is under the impression that North limbers up in the spring.

We admire Ed Lavery for his patience. Three years ago a tree in his front yard on Elm st. was cut down for the widening of the road and he was promised a replacement. He doesn't have it yet. At the same time the bounds marking his property were covered up and he was told they would be uncovered. It's not done yet. Then, last winter, he asked for restricted parking next to his GAR square package store. The selectmen promised to order the police department to post the signs. Lavery waited and waited. Finally, after about four more visits to the selectmen's meetings, the signs were put up, but they came down in three weeks. All of this has required close to a dozen calls on the selectmen, but not once has Ed had a cross word for any of them.

Sgt. Stanley H. Lykus had a visitor at police headquarters this morning. A little black kitten walked in the open door at the station, cuddled against the legs of the police officer, and then calmly crawled up on the desk and went to sleep in a basket. It was not a stray.

Pigeons should be more particular in their selection of locations in which to build nests. Two picked the awning in front of the Gas company recently and, for a time, the weather co-operated by making it unnecessary for the awning to be used, but the sun finally became warm enough so that the shade was needed Monday. An employe rolled down the awning and out of it popped a pigeon's nest and two eggs.

Is it true that the flood at the high school could have been avoided if the orders of the insurance company had been followed in regard to the original iron pipe which kept the sprinkler system in operation?

The owner of approximately two score unused ice boxes and refrigerators stored next to a barn in the north end of town would probably make a lot of parents happy if he complied with the law regarding removal of the doors so that children will not become imprisoned in them. Another ice box which might be the cause of a tragedy has also been brought to our attention. It is

Japan, and formerly studied at Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio. His father is on the faculty of the music department of the University of Minnesota, in charge of the University chorus, a Capella choir and chamber singers.

Progressives to Quit Israel Coalition

JERUSALEM (AP) — Ouster of the tiny Progressive party from Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's governing coalition appeared likely today following its failure to support the government's new marriage and divorce bill.

The measure, approved by the Knesset (Parliament) early today, gives rabbinical (church) courts absolute jurisdiction over Jewish residents in Israel in all marriage and divorce questions. It also empowers civil judges to impose prison sentences for refusal to obey rabbinical decrees.

The Progressives announced their opposition to the bill despite an agreement that binds all factions in the four-party governing coalition to support government measures.

The ouster of the Progressives would not affect the government's strength. They hold only four Parliament seats. The three other parties in the coalition — Labor, General Zionists and Orthodox — control a clear majority.

The sole Progressive Cabinet member, Justice Minister Pinhas Rosen, presumably will be asked to resign. He abstained on the vote.

During last night's session, the Knesset unexpectedly pushed through another highly controversial bill — the Women's National Service Act.

Ultra-Orthodox parties are bitterly opposed to the conscription of women into military service. They organized mass demonstrations last month when the bill came before the Knesset for its first reading.

Wellesley Girl Is Recovering

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) — Miss Sylvia Plath, 20, Smith College student discovered in the cellar of her home yesterday after a 40-hour police search, was reported in good condition at Wellesley-Newton Hospital today where she is recovering from an overdose of sleeping tablets.

The girl was found yesterday lying in a cellar-like recess beneath the porch of her home, hidden by a pile of kindling wood. An empty water jar and a bottle containing eight sleeping pills was found by police in the bathroom.

Plath was taken to the hospital when it was taken from the home. A search began Monday when the girl's mother, Mrs. Aurelia S. Plath, a Boston University professor, told police her daughter had vanished after leaving a note that she was taking a hike.

Her daughter, a frequent contributor of fiction and poetry to leading magazines, had been unable to write lately, and had been depressed, her mother said.

crowd and above and seem totally unaware they aren't alone in the world; women so absorbed in themselves they never take a moment to hold a door for a woman carrying a baby or loaded down with packages; women who seem not to regard a salesperson as a human being, and women who never realize their own need is no greater than anyone else's.

Another point is being impatient with a small child. No woman in the world can look beautiful yanking a small child by the arm, scowling and threatening each time the child tries to slow her down.

The dissatisfied look of the woman who is complaining about anything from the weather to her own aches and pains is far from attractive.

OTHER POINTS THAT ROB BEAUTY

LACK of attention to what another person is saying doesn't rate. A look of genuine interest is appealing, but a faraway disinterested look never is.

Being disgruntled over the small annoyances that happen every day takes the serenity from a woman's face. Those who accept trivial upsets as part of everyday living draw others to them. The look of annoyance on the face of the woman who lets small inconveniences upset her makes her anything but appealing.

If any show of selfishness or poor manners makes others look less attractive to you then you can be quite sure that you never look your best when your own manners aren't as good as they could and should be.

President Does Not Rule Out Financial Aid for Iran

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower has in effect congratulated Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran on the Royalist overthrow of the government of deposed Prime Minister Mossadegh.

The summer White House today made public an Eisenhower message to the Shah which took no note of the young Iranian monarch's bid for financial aid from any government—Russia included—willing to contribute. But it was phrased in terms which did nothing to rule out the possibility of United States aid.

The President's message said: "In the spirit of friendliness which has always been the basis for the relations of our two countries, I offer you my sincere felicitations on the occasion of your happy return (from exile) to your country and my continuing good wishes for every success in your efforts to promote the prosperity of your people and to preserve the independence of Iran."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the message was sent to the Shah "several days ago" through U. S. Ambassador to Iran Loy Henderson.

Hagerty added that word it had been delivered was received by Eisenhower yesterday.

Asked whether the friendly sentiments expressed by the President meant this country is ready to respond to the Shah's plea for funds, Hagerty replied: "I have no comment on that."

The Shah said in Teheran Sunday that Iran was broke and needed immediate financial aid to survive. He added, however, that while his country would accept aid from any contributor, it would grant no concessions in return.

Asked specifically whether Iran would accept help from Russia, the Shah said: "We are ready to accept help from anybody."

The Shah's talk of no concessions in return for aid underscored the troublesome issue of the oil dispute between Iran and Great Britain—an issue on which Eisenhower recently addressed Mossadegh in sharp terms. The Shah's attitude on that issue may be the key to whether the U. S. aids his country.
