Girl Spurns Romeo In Triangle Tangle

Called the key figure in a "real triangle" at the time of his first appearance in Municipal Court Aug. 20, handsome Jose Miguel, 26, of 18 Kirkland st., South End, yesterday heard one lady love spurn him while the other failed to appear in court.

Miguel, a veteran of Korea, was in the "fortunate" position of being sought in wedlock by two girls, with a marriage to either one taking him out of his difficulties with the law which involved morals charges.

At the time Judge George J. Roberts, in continuing the cases, said, "This is a real triangle," adding, "You ladies will have to iron out your difficulties."

Miguel had been accused of living with Stella Raymond, 27, against whom similar morals charges had been placed. He was also charged with a morals offense against a 16-year-old girl, with both protesting their love for him and their intentions of marrying him.

When the cases came up yesterday, however, Stella failed to appear an was defaulted, with the result the case involving her and Miguel was continued to Sept. 9.

Then the case involving the 16-year-old girl was heard by Judge J. John Fox. She told of having gone out on dates with Miguel and admitted she had loved him.

When Atty. Thomas Britt asked, "You want to marry him now, don't you?" the girl replied, "No. I don't think I'm old enough. My parents talked it over with me." She denied that Miguel had attacked her, and Judge Fox dismissed the charge against him.

Sen. Kennedy Returns From Europe for Bridal

Facing a busy two weeks in preparation for his marriage Sept. 12 to Jacqueline A. Bouvier, socialite heiress of Newport, R. I., U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy arrived at Logan Airport from France yesterday, impatient for reunion with his fiance.

"I'm heading for Newport right now to see her," the prospective bridegroom said. "I'd fly if the weather was better."

Kennedy said he found divided sentiment in France as reaction to his proposal for increased independence for French Indo-China.

"Communists and their sympathizers in France want to liquidate the fighting in French Indo-China so that the Viet Minh can get control of the country," he explained. "But we must remember that Indo-China is the key to southeast Asia, and Siam and Malaya could well be lost if Indo-China is lost."

The United States, Kennedy said, should urge the French to give Indo-China as much independence as possible to encourage and stimulate them to fight Communist aggression. He said there have been some changes in French sentiment, since the fighting in Indo-China has been a heavy drain on its economy and has prevented the nation from balancing its budget and aiding the Western Europe defense.

"Some want to settle the status of Indo-China by France, while others want the whole question turned over to the United Nations," Kennedy said.

The Mass. Automobile Rating and Accident Prevention Bureau has filed proposals for a 20 per cent increase in compulsory insurance rates, it was disclosed yesterday.

The proposal includes a classification plan under which drivers under 25 and operators of commercial vehicles would bear the brunt of the boost. The proposal was filed with State Insurance Commr. Joseph A. Humphreys.

Insurance companies it was learned, will strongly urge adoption of the classification plan as the best means of making those responsible for claims pay a fair share of the bill.

The Bureau points out that 70 per cent of private passenger cars would not have to pay an additional rate.

Humphreys said he hopes to announce the tentative rate schedule by the middle of next month.
