Woman Writer On Global Tour

The 62-year-old woman author of "I Fly As I Please" took off from Bedford Airport in a light plane today in an attempt to span the Atlantic and then around the world to Australia.

Wealthy Mrs. Marion Hart, well known New York sports-woman, was accompanied by a co-pilot navigator, a former airline pilot. His identity was not disclosed.

Mrs. Hart, who once skippered a 90-foot ketch on a three-year, 0,000-mile voyage that took in 101 ports all over the world, stayed quietly at the Colonial Inn, Concord, while her Beech Bonanza was equipped with extra gas tanks at Bedford.

She and her co-pilot had enough gas for 12 hours' flying when they started for St. Johns, Newfoundland, shortly after 11 a. m. on what was to have been a secret venture.

Hynes Asks Peak Work for Yard

Mayor Hynes today called on all Massachusetts members of Congress to do their utmost to maintain peak operations at the Boston Navy Yard.

Jailed for Bilking Widow of $8371

James H. Jacobson, 62, of St. Paul st., Cambridge, a former police station custodian, was sentenced to six months today for larceny of $8371.94 from Mrs. Louise Dinmore, of Royal st., Allston, a widow.

His plea for a suspended sentence as he could get a job to start making restitution was turned down by Municipal Judge Jacob Lawton with the comment:

Hears Judge--At Last

DETROIT (AP)—A wealthy Detroit beggar turned a deaf ear on most of his arraignment today before Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman—what he heard, he didn't like.

The beggar, arrested at a downtown corner, had $337 in cash in his pockets and a bankbook showing a balance of $4700.

"Where did you get the money?" the judge asked.

"In these times," Abrams said, "we can have no sympathy with members of the Communist Party. But persons who have been dupes and seek to be good American citizens should be given the opportunity to prove themselves."

"I was naive and ignorant," he said today. "I know better now. In fact, when all this trouble started, I quit my job with a Worcester camera company after telling one of the employees the whole story."

Baghdasarian, now employed as a laborer, served four years in the Army.

"I'm deaf, I can't hear you," the beggar responded.

"Where did you get this money?" the judge shouted.

"I can't hear you," the beggar repeated.

"I'll fine you $150," Judge Skillman muttered.

"I won't pay it," the beggar shouted.

Judge Skillman sentenced the panhandler to a 90-day term.

50 Sleep Pills Vanish With Missing Smith Girl

State Police said today that a 20-year-old Smith College senior was believed to have taken a bottle of about 50 sleeping pills with her when she vanished mysteriously from her Wellesley home after leaving her mother a note that she was "going for a hike."

Search for Sylvia Plath, of Elmwood st., a brilliant student who led the college's junior list of last year, was concentrated today in the woods near Lake Waban and Morse's Pond in Wellesley.

A bloodhound was brought from the Andover State Police barracks to aid in the hunt, but was unable to pick up the girl's trail there, probably, police said, because the woodlands were drenched with heavy rain last night.

Sylvia's mother, Mrs. Aurelia Plath, a Boston University professor, told police that the Wellesley woods, the banks of the Charles river, and Boston Common and the Public Garden were her daughter's favorite haunts when she went for walks. About 50 police and volunteers took part in the woods hunt today.

A former Army intelligence officer, was one of the searchers. State Police said they did not learn until this noon that the bottle of sleeping pills was missing from the girl's room. The note which Sylvia left for her mother read:

"I'm going for a hike and will be back tomorrow."

Mrs. Plath said she was hopeful that Sylvia would return today as she promised, but agreed her daughter's note was most unusual because the girl invariably kept her informed of her exact whereabouts.

The girl has been nervous and under a doctor's care for several months, her mother said, and had been advised to devote less time to academic activities in the interest of her health.

Mrs. Plath said her daughter was on the verge of a breakdown as the result of extremely intensive activities.

When last seen, the girl was wearing a blue denim skirt and blue jersey blouse.

Sylvia is five feet nine and weighs 149 pounds. Her hair is dark brown and her eyes are brown.

HELD—David Rabinovitz, 25, of Fenboro st., Roxbury, arrested on a bad check charge at North Station while dressed as an Army sergeant, asked police for a psychiatric examination. Police said he passed phony checks worth $800 within the past two weeks.

Injunction Denied On Parking Issue

Judge Daniel T. O'Connell declined to issue an injunction in Suffolk Superior Court today which would have prevented the Elliott-Carver Co. from renewing its lease on the off-street parking garage at Essex and Lincoln sts. He set the case down for early hearing on its merits and, meanwhile, the Elliott-Carver Co. lease, effective Sept. 1, will be signed tomorrow by Mayor Hynes.

The action was brought by Ell J. Ames, of Chestnut Hill, second high bidder for the new three-year lease, on the technicality that the Elliott-Carver Co. had failed to provide written evidence of its ability to post a performance bond, company bid $8000 per month rental while the Ames bid was for $7600.

Student Suspect In Thefts

A 22-year-old Milton youth and Boston University student, captured at gunpoint early today after a bullet-marked chase, was believed by police today to be responsible for a series of recent breaks in the Back Bay area where he has been employed this summer as a night watchman.

The youth, being held on suspicion pending further investigation, allegedly admitted that two rugs, a recording machine, a lamp and other merchandise found in the rear seat of his auto, parked at Hereford and Newbury sts., had been stolen in recent breaks.

When he appeared in the headquarters lineup, Det. Vernon White said there was evidence that he was involved in an Aug. 1 break in a Huntington ave. shop in which $1000 worth of electrical equipment and appliances was taken.

The suspect was spotted lurking in the doorway of a Newbury st. television shop by Patrolman John Harkins of the Back Bay station at 2:15 a. m. As the officer approached, the youth fled toward Hereford st. and Harkins fired two shots in the air.

A nearby resident telephoned the Back Bay station and Patrolmen Andrew Warren and William Stanton sped to the scene. The youth was cornered as he broke from an alley in Hereford st. and headed toward Commonwealth ave.

Police said investigation revealed that a locked cash box and several television sets had been lined up just inside the door of the store. They said the youth apparently had started for his car to haul away the loot when the officer intervened.

The prisoner's car, they said, was loaded with assorted tools, a record player, blankets and rugs. Officers said they found dozens of keys and were checking to determine whether any fitted the doors of burglarized stores throughout Greater Boston.
