Sylvia Plath, a Smith College
senior and literary contributor [contributor] to national magazines who vanished mysteriously, was found asleep in the cellar [cellar] of her home. She had taken 40 capsules of a sedative [sedative]. A 100-man searching party had scoured the countryside [countryside] around Wellesley, Mass., looking for the despondent [despondent] poet. She is recovering [recovering] in a hospital.
