Stevenson Then Goes to His Farm to Rest Up for Rally

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson hinted tonight he might seek the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination and then sought brief seclusion and rest today at his farm home.

"The former governor of Illinois said he might be enthusiastic about the nomination for President at the next Democratic National Convention.

He was at his farm at Libertyville, Ill., near here today resting and preparing for a big two-day Democratic Party rally and Forum Sept. 11 and 15.

Stevenson, attending a cocktail party with party workers and civic leaders yesterday to celebrate preparations for the September meeting, spoke briefly.

He said that, although the Democrats lost the national election last year, "we carried every country overseas from Korea to Britain."

Stevenson, who just finished a six-months globe-circling tour, did

Rev. Howard Selby, States Exposition Stricken With Heart

Former Springfield Resident and Ve- er, Businessman and Ordained Dies at Wheel of Car

Stricken with a heart attack while driving his car, Rev. Howard W. Selby, 62, of 219 Chestnut St., West Newton, president of the Eastern States Exposition at West Springfield and a former resident of this city, died last night at Charlestown.

Mr. Selby, who lived here from 1917 to 1925, and was active in the affairs of Trinity Methodist Church and the Springfield Rotary Club, suffered the attack while driving from the offices of the United Farmers of New England, where he was general manager, to his home.

According to a spokesman at Boston University, where Mr. Selby was chairman of the executive of the communities through which he will pass are to be consulted at that time, to draw up plans for the co-ordination of local and federal officers.

When the President's special plane, the Columbine, an Air Force Super Constellation, sets down at Westover, his party will be met by three cars. President Eisenhower in the lead car will be accompanied by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, Gov. Christian A. Herter and J. Loring Berooks, Jr., chairman of the Exposition's Governors' Day Committee, as well as security men. The next two cars will carry former Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, administrative assistant to the President; Thomas Stevens, the President's appointment secretary; James Hagerly, his press secretary; Maj. Draper, the chief executive's special pilot, and his personal physician.

Two more automobiles will bring up the rear. These will carry newsreel cameramen and photographers from the wire services. About 40 newsmen also will fly here in a special plane. They will follow the President's motorcade in a bus. The entire caravan will be preceded by a motorcade escort and will be flanked on all sides by Secret Service agents.

The more discerning spectators may be able to size up the rigors of the life of a President of the U. S. When Eisenhower then Mr. was here last, he was deeply fanned, and his rugged jovial visage betrayed only a little of the strain of the waning days of the election campaign. The President's tan will still be undiminished, plenty of golf has seen to that, but the tremendous burden of his job may have taken its toll in other ways.

The President will pay special tribute to the youth of New England on his visit here. J. Loring Brooks, Jr., noted today. In addition to addressing six New England governors and other dignitaries from seven northeastern states at a luncheon in the Massachusetts Building on the Exposition's famed Avenue of States, the President will participate in several events of special interest to young people, he said.

The emphasis on youth activities results from the fact that President Eisenhower's visit comes on Children's Day as well as Governors' Day. Based on past attendance figures, it is estimated there will be about 60,000 children present.

In one of his first acts at the Exposition, the President will talk informally to boys and girls who are members of 4-H organizations. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and young people from this area who have been selected to be youth hosts to the governors. This will take place near the Village Church at Storowton, the Exposition's restored early American village.

Following an introduction by Gov. Herter, the President will award the grand champion 4-H Baby Beef banner to the winner of the 4-H Baby Beef Contest. A few minutes later, a youth selected to represent all young people at the Exposition, will present the President with a gift in commemoration of his visit.

At the luncheon, when President Eisenhower will address the six New England governors and a group of invited guests, he will also be asked to present an award to the winner of the all-New England Green Pastures contest. Later, President Eisenhower will make another informal talk in the Coliseum where there are expected to be hundreds of children and their parents.

In addition, young people will have an opportunity to see the President as he makes a tour of the grounds and visits various exhibits.

MISSING SMITH

House on the Smith College campus, had been nervous, under a doctor's care for several months, and had been advised to devote less time to academic activities in the interest of her health.

Miss Plath was described as five feet, nine inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, dark brown hair and brown eyes and wearing a light blue skirt and white sleeveless blouse when she left home.

The honor student planned on returning to Smith College next month for her senior year. Prof. Plath said. Last year she was editor of the Smith Review, the college literary magazine, and a member of the college's Press Board.

Miss Plath won two poetry awards at Smith College last year, had three poems accepted by Harper's Magazine, had stories and poems published in Seventeen magazine, won a $500 award from Mademoiselle magazine for a short story and last May won a guest editorship to the Mademoiselle office in New York.

The mother said her daughter was fond of walking along the Charles River, or wandering through Boston Common and the Public Garden. Police searched these areas without success.

Miss Plath's father, the late Dr. Otto Plath, also was a Boston University professor. He died 10 years ago.

CHURCHILL FEARS

Britain's policy. He is anxious to keep the dispute over the Korean peace conference from spreading and the Communists from exploiting it.

Churchill returned from his country home, Chartwell, last night for today's urgent cabinet meeting at No. 10 Downing St.

The cabinet meeting is the second Churchill has called since he was stricken ill suddenly last June.

An informed source said Churchill now is performing the normal duties of a prime minister and that the period of complete rest prescribed by his doctors is over.

He still sees his physician, Lord Moran, from time to time.

The British press has made a major issue of American opposition to India's presence at a Korean political conference. They blame the influence of petulant, stubborn South Korean President Syngman Rhee for the U. S. position.

not explain the remark, but he evidently meant that he believed democratic policies were in greater favor with leaders of the free world.

Stevenson has been reluctant to criticize his old adversary, President Eisenhower, since the election, particularly on foreign issues.

Less Inclined Last Week

On his return from Europe last week the former Illinois governor was reluctant to discuss the possibility that he would carry his party's banner again, and told newsmen "I don't know" when asked if he would seek the nomination.

of the contracts to be let by the Army Ordnance Corps for half-ton trucks can be expected "any day." GM and Reo Truck are the only bidders.

The second contract, for M-48 Patton tanks, is sought by GM's Fisher Body and Chrysler Corp., and will be announced in a week or two.

WOMAN SWUNG

which immobilized Daniels, permitting the man to shoot him. Daniels and the unknown killer were struggling at the time, and, in desperation, as Daniels' strength and superior knowledge of wrestling holds began to tell on him, the man called out to the woman, "Mary (or Marie), get the club!" This she did, striking his head with a vicious blow.

Filling in the gaps of yesterday's report, The Daily News' source, who requested that his name not be used, said that the shooting happened around 1:30 Sunday morning. Daniels was able to stop the car of the couple who drove away without paying for their purchase of gasoline about three miles down the highway from the spot where he ran a prosperous restaurant, gas station and string of some 28 tourist cabins.

It was almost directly in front of the country club to which he belonged that Daniels pulled the other car over. The driver of the other car told Daniels he had no money and asked him to take a watch in payment. Daniels refused. Words led to a struggle. The two men rolled over a slight embankment and it was then that Daniela' killer told the woman to get the stone leather-bound weapon with which she stunned him.

As Daniels told it to police, his assailant was carrying the death gun on his person. This leads police to believe that the man is connected with the racketeers. With a bullet in his stomach—the other slug made complete penetration of his body and passed out his back—Daniels feigned death until the couple drove away. Then the former college wrestler made his way up the embankment and hailed a passing motorist, who summoned an ambulance.

Road blocks were set up all over upper New York State by police but the killers eluded the net.

Peritonitis was given as the cause of Daniels' death Sunday night.

Well known in this section, the 35-year-old murder victim used to work at the Tibbitts Jig-bore Co. in West Springfield during the winter when his tourist business was closed.

The dead man leaves his wife, the former Beatrice Hitchcock of 1476 Westfield St., and two small children, Lucille, 11, and Thomas, Jr., 7.

The funeral will be held at the Valley View Chapel in South Ticonderoga tomorrow at 2 p. m. The Wilcox funeral home in Ticonderoga is in charge of arrangements.

McMichael, confronted with Johnson, denied he knew him.

Another former Communist, Leonard Patterson, also testified that he knew McMichael as a member of the Young Communist League in 1934 and 1935.

However, the Methodist minister steadfastly denied he had ever attended any meeting of the Young Communist League or the Communist Party "to the best of my knowledge."
