

'Guest House' for Grandchildren Eliminates Congestion Headaches

This kitchen nook was installed inexpensively in the guest room and provides a handy place for formula-making. A tiny sink, ice-box and a double electric burner were all that was necessary.

A built-in "guest house" may be the answer to the grand-parents' problem when daughter shepherds her flock home for their annual visit. Or moves in for an extended stay while Dad's in the service.

Small children, lovable as they are, toss the well-ordered routine of mature adults right out the window.

As the mother of a brood, I've been embarrassed by a sizable imposition of our crowded, hectic schedule on the slower-paced life of grandparents. Little ones are up early, need early meals, sometimes special food. Even the most indulgent grandmother admits a certain frustration when her stove is tied up with baby's accept or reject the committee recommendations.

The transfer of funds to pay the salary of an assistant superintendent was a committee problem, Field declared.

Councilman Arcikowski said that the post could be established if the present critical situation in Taunton's water system were labelled an emergency period.

Councilman Brennan then withdrew his motion to hold a meeting of Council and Water Commissioners and council passed Johnston's motion to have the committee investigate further.

Hunt Continues For Smith Girl

WELLESLEY, Mass. (P)—Search continued today for Sylvia Plath, 20, a Smith College senior who disappeared Monday after leaving a note for her mother that she was going for a hike.

The mother, Mrs. Aurelia S. Plath, a Boston University professor, said her daughter's disappearance may have been due to a temporary nervous disorder linked to her writing.

Miss Plath was editor of the Smith Review, the college literary magazine, last year, and has sold fiction and poetry to magazines and other publications.

Mrs. Plath said her daughter "recently felt she was unworthy of the confidence held for her by the people she knew. For some time she has been unable to write either fiction, or her more recent love, poetry.

"Instead of regarding this as just an arid period that every writer faces at times," the mother said, "she believed something had happened to her mind, that it was unable to produce creatively any more."

France Moving Back to Normal

PARIS (P)—France struggled bare to normalcy today after almost three weeks of dislocation because of strikes. The general back-to-work movement encountered only a few islands of resistance.

Railway trains were running again. Paris buses and subways were back on schedule. Big bundles of mail were being delivered after the long lieup. Telephone calls could be placed to most parts of France, although traffic was much heavier than normal and delays sometimes were long.

The two biggest holdout industries were the nationalized gas and electricity works and coal mines. Even here, there was some improvement. Gas and electricity were supplied throughout the strikes except for minor disruptions. In some provincial towns, the regular workers were reporting back today.

The strikes, which at one time had about four million persons off the job, developed as a protest to proposed economy decrees affecting workers in government-run industries. Premier Laniel's government has not announced its final decision on the decrees.

Mother Killed In Auto Toss

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (P)—Mrs. Lawrence W. Caton, 28, mother of five children, was killed yesterday when she was tossed out of a car which plummeted off a high sand dune in this Cape Cod town.

Her husband and four others in the car escaped with minor injuries.

They told police they were riding across the sand dunes at the time of the accident.
